The Wisconsin Department of Health Services issued a press release today showing that the "Safer at Home" order is working. Click here for the release. The release states that models predicted Wisconsin would have approximately 22,000 cases of COVID-19 by April 8, with between 440 and 1,500 deaths. In early March, Wisconsin's rate of doubling was about 3.4 days, though this has slowed to about 12 days in recent weeks. Physical distancing and other measures are proving to be successful, according to the release.

The City of Racine has also experienced its first death as result of COVID-19. The death was of a male in his 50s.

After learning of the death, Mayor Mason had this to say: "Today we learned that the City has lost its first resident to coronavirus. Our thoughts and prayers go out to his family and friends. If we want to honor his life, we all need to follow the Safer at Home order. The best thing we can do to save lives is stay home. Please remember to wash your hands frequently and use social distancing if you are required to go out. If we all take this seriously and follow the guidelines, we will save lives."
